Here's More About Annexation EDITORIAL

 Certainly if this admirably located residential property is ever going to be made marketable, it will have to be provided with paved streets. Economists tell us that good times are just around the corner, and when we get to the corner, Torrance will need desirable building lots. Let's get them ready now when costs are low and work is needed. Payments can be deferred until there is a sale for the lots.

The County Welfare department is supporting about 70 men in Torrance and vicinity. It has offered to let these men work for the city of Torrance and receive their support out of county funds. Looks like a good deal. We can think of lots of jobs for them, such as: trimming low branches off trees along El Prado; cutting weeds off lots in the business and residence districts; beautification of Torrance boulevard including the strip between Western and Border; re-painting the names of streets on curbs; also curb numbering of all houses, and numerous other odd jobs about town. When a city can get men to work without paying them; it ought to find lots of jobs, say we.

ARIZONA HOTELS PROSPER
PHOENIX, Ariz.—(UP)—Arizona, with its population of less than half a million, enjoys an annual hotel business of more than $4,000,000, a Chamber of Commerce survey disclosed. A large portion of the hotel income is from eastern visitors who spend the winters in southern Arizona, with the summer business of the northern highlands swelling the volume considerably.

VACATION IS BETTER THAN GOLF AWARD

Slip Kelsey Declines To Win Palos Verdes Prize; Is Holiday-Bound

Vacation means more to L. B. "Slip" Kelsey than winning the annual Palos Verdes invitational tournament.
 Yesterday, "Slip" torred the links 73 strokes to lead a field of first-day qualifiers in the "Tourney." With an eight handicap, Kelsey has a net score of 66, which practically assures him of this year's title.
 Kelsey won the first flight title last year's event, but will be able to play through the event season, being scheduled to play at Twin Lakes tomorrow. It's just another golf tourney, "I need a vacation, so I guess I'll let some other bird win the title," Kelsey declared today.

C. Smith Turns Sleuth In Search For a Baby's Crib

Dropping his work as a real estate operator and industrial land developer extraordinary, J. C. Smith set on a still hunt this week for a baby crib 30 by 54 inches in size. He scoured the city and adjoining territory and yesterday announced he had found one, 28 by 54 inches.
 The reason for Smith's activity was explained in a letter received from the Chamber of Commerce this week from a woman in Yuma, Arizona who desired reservation of a house for three adults and a baby for two weeks in Torrance. She had been attracted by the advertisements appearing in a Yuma paper that proclaimed this city's advantages for vacationists.
 But she wanted to make sure she could rent a baby crib of the size given. "They do it at San Diego beaches and it would be much more convenient for us to rent one in Torrance." The result of Smith's search will be forwarded to the Yuma matron immediately.

Wandering Seal Lands in Pound

By the United Press
 LOS ANGELES.—A deep roar was heard the other day among the assorted yips, arfs and growls of the city dog pound.
 It was Willie, the wandering seal, giving vent to his humiliation. He had been found way up on Lookout Mountain, far away from the ocean, by Ralph E. Winchester. How the seal got there, no one knows. He was turned over to the city pound. On one side of him was a bound with a litter of pups. On the other was a police dog. Willie gave one look at them and let out a roar that shook the rafters.

To Fly in China

This California-born Chinese youth, Lee Sun, is likely to figure in future dispatches of China's struggle for government unity. Having won his flying spurs in California, today he is en route to China to assume an official position in that country's air forces.

Shifting Sands Are Playing Havoc With State Beach Lands

By the United Press
 SACRAMENTO.—Shifting sands and vagrant ocean currents constitute a threat against California beaches and harbors.
 Because of this a recommendation has been made to Governor Rolph that immediate steps be taken to initiate a long term study of the movement of beach sands and the action of currents and waves upon breakwaters and other beach and harbor improvement projects.
 "Through the constant shifting of sand and harbor bars, and erosion, shore lines and harbor bottoms tend to change to a striking degree and oftentimes in an undesirable direction," Morrigh O'Brien, assistant professor of the ship justice court, quarters for the County library and constable's office as well as rooms for the Health and Welfare authorities.

 In event the County Supervisors strike the Torrance appropriation from the budget, it is quite likely that the city will withdraw its offer of the site and proceed to develop the land into a public park.
 Following the public hearing on the budget the Supervisors will meet to fix the new tax rate. Under the law this should be done the first Monday in September, but as the day is a holiday, Labor Day, the action will be taken the day following, or on September 8, department of mechanical engineering, University of California, stated.
